Course Overview: This course is designed to provide an overview of research design, methods, and ethics for graduate students in public health, with an emphasis in the social and behavioral sciences. The overarching aims for the course are to provide students with: (1) an overview of the types of research methods available; (2) the opportunity to design, conduct, and evaluate research projects; and (3) an understanding of key ethical, cultural, and political issues related to the conduct of research. We will use a variety of instructional methods to address these aims, including readings, discussions, projects, online activities, and hands-on research experiences.

Course Objectives: It is expected that by the end of this course students will be able to:
1. Outline the role and importance of research in the health sciences
2. Distinguish key ethical issues associated with different types of social research
3. Write research questions and hypotheses on a topic of interest
4. Compare and contrast the key features of observational, qualitative, survey, quasi-experimental, and experimental research designs
5. Integrate basic quantitative and qualitative concepts with research methods
6. Develop a research proposal that describes the need, academic context, methodology, and implications of a specific study
7. Communicate research with others in written and oral formats
8. Critique the research design, process, and outcomes of their own work and the work of others

Course Materials: This course will use the Canvas CMS. For issues with technical difficulties please contact the instructor or Academic Technology at the following:
Course Requirements

Quizzes (Weekly, Online)
There will be weekly quizzes to assess your comprehension of concepts and knowledge of requisite information needed to be successful in this course. The quizzes are in the Canvas course site, are timed, and are directly related to each week’s required readings. You will have 2 attempts to complete each quiz and the highest score will be recorded. These quizzes will help you evaluate your understanding of course content by providing you feedback on your performance.

Professionalism (Preparation, In-class Contributions, and Occasional Outside Activity)
All students will be expected to contribute during in-class activities, team-based problem solving, and online activities. Since research is most often done in teams, your contributions to your assigned team will also count toward professionalism.

Research Proposal (Due 4/15/16)
You will complete a research proposal over the course of the semester with opportunities to submit sections in stages. I will provide you feedback on these sections to improve your final submission. A detailed rubric will be provided on the Canvas course site with explicit expectations. The final research proposal will be written in APA style (6th edition) and include a title page, abstract (200 words), introduction, literature review, methods, as well as a reference page. The paper should be double spaced, have 1-inch margins, and use Arial 11 font. The proposal must be between 10 and 15 pages, excluding the references. All proposals will be submitted to Turnitin when submitting on Canvas. Further details of this assignment will be available on the Canvas course site.

Group Research Proposal Presentation (Due: 4/14/16)
Your team will prepare and deliver a presentation of proposed research on a chosen topic. Presentations should include the following:
- Introduction: The introduction should include a brief statement of the problem and purpose, and include any definitions of constructs.
- Significance of the Study: This should include a rationale justifying why the study is worthy of the work that will be involved.
- Research Question and Hypothesis: This should include specific language that identifies all variables or potential phenomena.
- Methods: This section should encompass the typical components discussed under the “Methods” section.
- Discussion: Discuss the strengths and limitations of your study. What are the bigger implications of your findings? How should we proceed?
PowerPoint or any other presentation software may be used for this assignment. Further details will be provided in class several weeks before the due date.
